ST. JAMES' BODY TRANSPORTED BACK TO SPAIN. BUILDING OF THE CATHEDRAL

Loyal and dedicated disciples of Saint James decided to bring his body to Spain for burial. They were risking their own lives due to Herod Agrippa's persecutions. They talked to different merchants, kings and queens, trying to find a way to transport the body of St. James back to the peninsula. Finally, he was secretly transported to the north of Spain in a small boat. His body was buried by his disciples, and the Cathedral of Santiago was built in the place where his relics are.
