A MAD TEA PARTY

There was a table set out under a tree in front of the house, and the March Hare and the Hatter were having tea at it. Alice sat down in a chair, and the Hatter told her she needed a haircut and asked the riddle “why is a raven like a writing-desk?”. The Hatter asked her what day of the month it was. His watch didn’t tell the time but the day of the month.

Then the Hatter asked if she had come up with an answer to the riddle, but she hadn’t, and the Hatter and the Hare said they didn’t know the answer either. Alice told them not to waste time by asking riddles with no answers. Then, the Hatter told her that he quarreled with Time last March at a concert given by the Queen of Hearts, and now it is forever six o’clock.

Alice, the Hare and the Hatter wake the Dormouse and asked him to tell them a story. Alice kept interrupting the story so the others made rude remarks to her. Finally, she became really offended and walked away.

Alice notices a tree with a door in it, and when she enters it she finds herself in the great hall. She takes the key and unlocks the door, eats from the mushroom to make herself smaller and is finally able to enter the beautiful garden.
