AN ADVENTURE IN THE DARK

Kasperl has to peel potatoes all day long. When it finally gets dark outside, he climbs out the window. He quietly creeps through the garden.

He is about to climb over the fence when something pulls him back. He looks around anxiously. But there is no one there.

“Right again!” thinks Kasperl.

This time he takes a run. He jumps and is thrown back.

“Who is it?” he whispers. But everything remains dead quiet. Only the forest rustles in the wind.

“Then I’ll just crawl under the fence,” thinks Kasperl. He is grabbed again. This time on the feet. And that’s not all. He even gets a slap in the face. Kasperl screams in fright.

Now Petrosilius Zackleman is awake too.

“Look at this!” shouts the magician from his tower window.

“You want to run away! But there is no way out of my magic castle. I made sure of that. Go back to sleep, you stupid!”
