

SULTAN OF ELEPHANTS AND GIMPY RED BEARDED ANT

Group:

S18
T3
L2

ANT SONG

|                                                                                                                                                                   |                                                                                                                                                                          |                                                                                                                                                                 |                                                                                                                                                              |
|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
|  Ants scratch their backs on trees because they think they are elephants. |  At that moment they hear a folk song in the distance.                           |  The song "We are ants" reminds ants that they are ants and not slaves. |  The red-bearded lame ant and his friends also hear the folk song. |
|  They wage war against the elephants but are defeated again.            |  At the end of the wars, there are very few ants left.                         |  The sultan of elephants gives these ants more work.                  |  They also receive food for their work.                          |
|  Over time, the number of ants increases again.                         |  But the ants, not wanting to be slaves, run away to the red-bearded lame ant. |  Spy yellowjackets are detected and destroyed.                        |  The red ants secretly plan and start to undermine the palace.   |