THE HAUNTED WORKSHOP

Master Eder was supposed to make a closet for Mrs. Steinhauser, but couldn't finish it. He had to look for every tool and every screw. He wasn't sloppy at all, but the things just never stayed where he put them.

Master Eder was beginning to think that he was getting too old and forgetful. Soon Mrs. Steinhauser came and asked for her closet.

"I would have finished it long ago, Mrs. Steinhauser," said the master, "but I can't find the lock. I don't know what's wrong with me lately!"

Ms. Steinhauser comforted him: "Oh, Mr. Eder, everyone misplaces things sometimes." She also looked around a bit and found the lock in the wood waste.

Strange things like this happened in the workshop all day long. After the lady left, a box full of nails flew to the floor by itself. The screwdriver was gone and the glue pot was beeping and moving!

The old master first thought that he had mice, then he noticed a red-haired creature with big ears and shiny eyes. It was stuck on the glue pot and was flailing with its arms and legs!
