THE JOURNEY OF HOPE

Yana woke to a thunderous noise. The sky outside was eerily dark, covered by a massive black cloud. She saw a bomber plane in the distance and heard a scream nearby. Heart pounding, she ran to wake her parents. Her mother held her trembling hands, trying to calm her. Her father said a boat at the harbor could save them, but he chose to stay behind.

Yana and her mother rushed through the chaotic streets, rain beginning to fall. She pulled up her hood to hide her tears. Her mother said, "We have to be brave, Yana. There's a better life waiting for us in Turkey."

At the harbor, they boarded the boat across the Black Sea. Yana looked back one last time, heart aching for her father. Her mother held her and whispered, "Everything will be alright, you'll see," offering a small comfort to her troubled heart.
